

Procurement with purpose

Smarter procurement for stronger public services with Consultancy Services from Inprova

Public sector procurement today

Public sector procurement teams are under increasing pressure to deliver greater value, transparency, and impact - often with limited resources and capacity. With new procurement legislation in England and Wales, and ongoing developments in Scotland, the landscape is shifting - but the need for effective procurement is universal. Many organisations find themselves stretched, lacking the time and expertise to unlock the full potential of procurement. The real challenge isn't just about keeping up with change, but about finding ways to achieve more for your organisation and the communities you serve.

As legislation changes can put pressure on procurement, your team may be feeling the strain. In fact, our research shows nearly half of procurement functions feel under-resourced, and only 58% of professionals say they've had enough training to meet changing demands.*

But despite the hurdles, there's a clear opportunity to make smarter spending decisions and focus resources where they're needed most. So how can you get it right? Strong procurement relies on expert guidance and the right tools. That's why we're here to break down complex requirements and help you reach your goals quickly and sustainably.

Procurement that powers public impact

Procurement is a strategic lever for better outcomes. It delivers efficiency, quality and value for money, helping public sector organisations to focus on what matters most.

The right approach protects resources and delivers value for the communities they serve... while the wrong one - even if well-intentioned - can erode trust and weaken the services people depend on.

We support public sector procurement teams to make stronger decisions that create sustainable value. We show you how to deliver more for less, bringing your organisational strategy to life while shrinking risks and staying compliant. With our practical advice, tools, and expertise, we can help you transform your approach without overwhelming already stretched team members.

So, whether you need specialist procurement advice, hands-on delivery, or strategic vision, we're ready to bring you fast yet sustainable results.

Procurement Transformation

- ✓ Maximise your performance
- ✓ Reduce costs
- ✓ Stay compliant and manage risks
- ✓ Deliver your organisation's strategy
- ✓ Create a roadmap for long-term success

Rethink procurement for maximum value

When you're caught up in day-to-day demands, you probably don't have time to stop and scrutinise your procurement practices.

But your strategy and the way this is communicated shapes everything you do, from how you choose suppliers to the way you manage them. The right procurement governance framework is fundamental to achieving your organisational and procurement ambitions – be it compliance, driving greater outcomes, maximise value or improving customer satisfaction.

So ask yourself: Does your approach truly support your organisation's goals? Are you wasting time on inefficient processes or ignoring major risks? And are you getting the results you need from your suppliers?

When you work with us, we'll take a thorough look at your approach to procurement and contract management systems and help you transform it to create more value for your stakeholders and end users. With our expertise, proven procurement solutions, and powerful technology, you can drastically increase your return on investment and have more to show for your hard work.

Our options include:

Maturity Assessment

Our maturity assessment shows how your procurement measures up to industry best practice and other public sector organisations. We'll pore over your spend, supplier management, systems, and more to reveal which changes will have the greatest impact.

The assessment covers six vital pillars of procurement performance:

6 PROCUREMENT PILLARS
Spend & Compliance	Supplier Management	Policy, Procedure, & Strategy	Measurement & Reporting	Systems & Process	Structure & Resource
Detailed analysis of 12-months spend data	Review approach to supplier and contract management - processes, documentation, and delivery.	Review procurement strategy and its alignment with the organisational strategy. Review of policies, procedures, and governance.	Assessment of procurement-related targets and objectives and the associated measurements and reporting of performance.	Assessment of the systems in place to support key processes within procurement, contract management and the payment of supplier.	Assessment of the current delivery model.

Based on this analysis, we'll draw up a practical improvement plan that delivers both quick wins and long-term strategic results.

Gaining a clear idea of where you are now, where you could be, and how to get there is the first step to making sustainable changes that help public funds go further.

If you don't require a full maturity assessment, we can support you in the following areas too:

Strategy and Policy Development

Align your strategy with broader business objectives to guarantee your procurement does what you need it to. We'll make sure your policies are relevant, effective, and embedded throughout your organisation, and that you're taking a proactive rather than a reactive approach.
